Best cheap eats in New York City

Everything under $10!

35 best new cheap eats

The sucky economy brought us a parade of fantastically affordable new eateries. Thanks, mortgage crisis!

Num Pang Sandwich Shop

Why we love it: Kampuchea Noodle Bar chef Ratha Chau opened this tiny shop to sell his assertively flavored Cambodian sandwiches in a convenient grab-and-go format. Similar to Vietnamese banh mi, the oblong baguettes are filled with a variety of meats, pickled vegetables, cilantro and spicy chili mayo.

Top picks for $10 and under: If you're hankering for mammal, spring for hefty ingredients like braised pork belly with pickled rhubarb; fish eaters will be satisfied by a thickly cut slab of mackerel packed in with leeks and cilantro. 21 E 12th St between Fifth Ave and University PI (212-255-3271)
